PREFACE

The roles and responsibilities of governments and institutions in the North are evolving rapidly as a result of land claims and self-government agreements, devolution to the territorial governments and the creation of a new territory, Nunavut. New institutions of public government with responsibilities for land use planning and resources management are being created pursuant to land claims settlements. Resource management boards have or will assume from DIAND many of its historical regulatory authorities. However, DIAND will still have residual responsibilities for managing remaining federal lands in a way that complements the activities of the new institutions and governments. This includes, as a specific component of DIAND's sustainable development strategy, continuing to develop a program for the effective management of granular resources.

DIAND's sustainable development strategy also includes a number of the objectives, targets and specific actions that will require or encourage the identification of stakeholders and interest groups. These include strengthening partnerships with other organizations, increasing opportunities for northerners to participate in decisions that affect their future, collaborating with others, increasing the capacity of northerners to benefit from development opportunities, improved consultation, ensuring transparency and inclusiveness as a key to effective communication with northerners. For the Northern Granular Resources Program to meet its goals with respect to the Department's commitment to foster sustainable development in the North, there is a need for a better understanding of the range of organizations and individuals affected by granular resource management actions and decisions.

Separate directories for the Northwest Territories, Nunavut and Yukon have been prepared under contract to DIAND. This series attempts to compile information on government and non-governmental organizations and individuals, owners, operators, service providers involved with, or affected by, any or all aspects of the identification, exploration, regulation, development, management and use of granular resources in Canada's northern territories. While care was taken to ensure that the information was accurate and current at the time of compilation, it is inevitable that there will be changes or additions. Users of this directory are encouraged to forward any new information to either of the addresses provided on the back of the title page.

INTRODUCTION

The Northern Affairs Program (NAP) of the federal Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development (DIAND) has overall responsibility for the control and administration of wide range of natural resources in the North. This includes the responsibility to ensure that resource development benefits all Canadians while reducing damage to the environment and enhancing the lifestyles of all northern residents. Granular resources are necessary for most development projects in the North.

Ownership of land in the North generally includes ownership of granular resources - soil, sand, gravel and certain types of rock that are required for land development and are accessible from the land surface in pit and quarry operations. Generally, through the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development Act, the federal government has an overall responsibility for resources in the North, as well as residual responsibility for remaining federal lands, identified in the Territorial Lands Act. In the Northwest Territories, there are four categories of land ownership.

- ◆ Crown lands (federal lands administered by DIAND; also referred to as territorial lands in the Territorial Lands Act)
- ◆ Commissioner's lands (federal lands administered by the territorial government)
- ◆ Settlement or Private lands (administered by the appropriate land claim organization)
- ◆ Municipal lands (administered by the territorial government or the municipality)

The laws and regulations affecting the taking and use of granular resources, and the process for obtaining authorizations, vary across the North, and depend also on land ownership.

It is imperative that the needs of a wide array of stakeholders and interest groups be considered in order to properly develop and manage these important resources. Consequently, DIAND has attempted to compile, verify and update information on all stakeholders involved in granular resources. What follows is a comprehensive directory of those involved with any or all aspects of the identification, exploration, regulation, development, management and use of granular resources within the Northwest Territories.

How to use this Directory

The Directory includes three parts.

The first part includes key definitions and a brief overview of the laws, regulations and application process applicable to the various land ownership categories, including key regulatory contacts.

The second part consists of listings of stakeholders grouped into four main categories and several sub-categories. At the beginning of the listing is a brief explanation of the categories and its sub-categories. The main categories are as follows:

- ◆ Regulators;
- ◆ Development and Use;
- ◆ Services; and
- ◆ Reference

Each stakeholder listing includes (as available) name, position title and organization, mailing and e-mail addresses, telephone and fax numbers and several keywords that describe the stakeholder's role or interest in granular resources.

The third part contains three indexes of the stakeholders included in the directory and the page on which their full entry is included. The first index lists organizations that are grouped alphabetically under subject categories that generally correspond to those in the second part of the directory. The second is an alphabetical listing of all organizations in the directory. The final index is an alphabetical listing of all persons in the directory.

ACTS & REGULATIONS AFFECTING PITS & QUARRIES

The following is a brief list of the major Acts and Regulations that apply to pit and quarry development in the Northwest Territories:

- ◆ Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act (MVRMA) and Mackenzie Valley Land Use Regulations,
- ◆ Territorial Lands Act, Territorial Land Use Regulations, Territorial Quarrying Regulations,
- ◆ Commissioner's Land Act and Commissioner's Land Regulations,
- ◆ Fisheries Act,
- ◆ NWT Waters Act, and
- ◆ Mine Safety Ordinances and Rules.

The settlement of the Inuvialuit Final Agreement, Gwich'in Final Comprehensive Land Claims Agreement and the Sahtu Dene and Metis Comprehensive Land Claims Agreement have created some major changes regarding quarrying rights on Aboriginal owned lands. The North Slave, South Slave and Deh Cho regions have yet to finalize land claims with the government.

However, there is generally a requirement to obtain an authorization for the right to take the material, and also a separate authorization to undertake any land use activity to explore or develop the site. Depending on the location of the resource, the laws, procedures and issuing agencies may differ.

Crown Lands

In the Northwest Territories, DIAND is divided into two main districts - North Mackenzie and South Mackenzie (see map on inside back cover). Depending on the location of the proposed project, applications and inquires regarding quarry permits for sand and gravel extraction should be directed to the appropriate DIAND District Office below:

Southern Mackenzie Valley

The district manager of the DIAND District Office is responsible for regulation of land use activities on Crown lands in the unsettled land claim areas of the Northwest Territories, generally known as the Southern Mackenzie Valley. The statute for governing the removal and disposal of granular materials is the Territorial Lands Act, which is the enabling legislation for two key regulations: Territorial Land Use Regulations and Territorial Quarrying Regulations. If exploratory work is required to investigate a potential pit or quarry site, a land use permit is required before undertaking such work. Prior to removing any granular materials on Crown lands in this region, a developer must obtain both a quarry permit and land use permit from DIAND.

A land use permit authorizes temporary use of the land for activities associated with a quarry activity for periods of less than three years. Land use permits are designed to minimize environmental disturbance and contain conditions regarding environmental protection, location and area, timing of operation, type and size of equipment, abandonment and clean-up. A security deposit is required.

This Directory was compiled prior to proclamation of Part IV of the Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act, establishing the Mackenzie Valley Land and Water Board. Land use permit applications in the Southern Mackenzie Valley should now be referred to :

Mackenzie Valley Land & Water Board

P.O. Box 2130, Yellowknife, NT X1A 2P6
Phone: (867) 669-0506 Fax: (867) 873-6610

A quarry permit authorizes a person to remove a specific amount of material from specific lands. Permits expire when the quantity of material or substance mentioned in the permit has been quarried or removed or on the expiry of one year from the date of issue, whichever is earlier. The permit requires the payment of royalties and fees, based on the amount of material to be removed estimated on the permit. Money is refunded if less than the full amount of material is used.

A developer may obtain a quarry lease, once the lands containing the deposits are staked, if use of the resource will be required over several years.

Further information concerning the regulations and procedures can be obtained from sources listed in this Directory under Regulators and Reference. All relevant federal Acts and Regulations may be obtained from DIAND offices and web site www.inac.gc.ca/legisl/legisl.html. Key documents include "Environmental Guidelines: Pits and Quarries" and the "Administrative Guide" (available at DIAND offices), as well as "Jurisdictional Responsibilities for Land Resources, Land Uses and Development in the Yukon Territory and Northwest Territories" (available at DIAND offices and web site www.inac.gc.ca/pubs/jrlr/index.html).

Northern Mackenzie Valley

In the settled land claim areas (Inuvialuit, Gwich'in and Sahtu), a quarry permit issued under the Territorial Quarrying Regulations is still required from DIAND to obtain granular materials from Crown lands.

Gwich'in and Sahtu Settlement Areas

In the Gwich'in and Sahtu settlement areas, a land use permit may also be required, under the Mackenzie Valley Land Use Regulations of the Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act, however, the Land and Water Boards, established through this Act, issue land use permits. The Gwich'in Comprehensive Land Claim Agreement and the Sahtu Dene and Metis Land Claim Agreement set out the framework for a new regulatory system in these regions of the Northwest Territories. The Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act established the regulatory boards. In the Gwich'in and Sahtu Settlement Areas either the Gwich'in Land and Water Board or the Sahtu Land and Water Board regulate land use activities on all lands, outside of municipal boundaries. These boards are responsible for receiving land use applications and conducting preliminary screening, as well as issuing, amending and renewing all licenses and permits within their respective regions. Further environmental assessment, if required, is conducted by the Mackenzie Valley Environmental Impact Review Board. Land use permits in these areas are issued by these boards under the Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act and the Mackenzie Valley Land Use Regulations.

Certain lands within the Inuvialuit Settlement region are subject to overlap agreements with the Gwich'in and consequently fall under Gwich'in administration.

Inuvialuit Settlement Region

Similar to the process in southern Mackenzie Valley, the district manager of the DIAND District Office is responsible for regulation of land use activities on Crown lands in the Inuvialuit Settlement Region. The statute for governing the removal and disposal of granular materials is the Territorial Lands Act, which is the enabling legislation for two key regulations: Territorial Land Use Regulations and Territorial Quarrying Regulations. If exploratory work is required to investigate a potential pit or quarry site, a land use permit is required before undertaking such work. Prior to removing any granular materials on Crown lands in this region, a developer must obtain both a quarry permit and land use permit from DIAND.

A quarry permit authorizes a person to remove a specific amount of material from specific lands. Permits expire when the quantity of material or substance mentioned in the permit has been quarried or removed or on the expiry of one year from the date of issue, whichever is earlier.

A land use permit authorizes temporary use of land for periods of less than three years. Land use permits are designed to minimize environmental disturbance and contain conditions regarding environmental protection, location and area, timing of operation, type and size of equipment, abandonment and clean-up. A security deposit is required.

Further information concerning the regulations and procedures can be obtained from sources listed in this Directory under Regulators and Reference. All relevant federal Acts and Regulations may be obtained from DIAND's web site www.inac.gc.ca/legisl/legisl.html. Two key documents, "Environmental Guidelines: Pits and Quarries" and the "Administrative Guide" are both published and available at DIAND offices.

First Nations or Private Lands

In the Northwest Territories there are three settled land claims: the Gwich'in Comprehensive Land Claim Agreement, the Sahtu Dene and Metis Land Claim Agreement, and the Inuvialuit Final Agreement. As part of these land claim agreements, the First Nations obtained ownership of large tracts of land within their settlement areas. Quarrying rights and permitting are different on First Nations-owned or private lands and it is also necessary to obtain access agreements from the landowner.

Gwich'in Land

Within the Gwich'in Settlement Area, the Gwich'in Land Administration is responsible for the administration of all Gwich'in owned lands in the settlement area. Land use permits are issued for private lands by the Gwich'in Land and Water Board. Access to Gwich'in lands must be negotiated with the Gwich'in Land Administration. The Gwich'in have developed Land Control Rules to govern the management and administration of their lands.

Sahtu Land

As a result of the Sahtu Dene and Metis Comprehensive Land Claim Agreement, the Sahtu gained ownership to approximately 41,000 square kilometers of land in the Sahtu Settlement Area. While land use permits are issued for private lands by the Sahtu Land and Water Board, access to lands and quarry rights must be negotiated with the Sahtu Land Corporations. There are three District Land Corporations who are responsible for managing the lands.

Inuvialuit Land

The Inuvialuit have assigned the management of Inuvialuit-owned land to the Inuvialuit Land Administration (ILA). The ILA controls all land use activities on Inuvialuit-owned lands and follows its own procedures and guidelines.

A licence or concession must be obtained from the Inuvialuit Land Administration office in Tuktoyaktuk prior to the removal of granular material. The Inuvialuit Final Agreement contains various conditions on rights, fees and royalties payable. A licence is a non-exclusive right to remove a specified volume of sand and gravel from a particular site during a period not exceeding one year. A concession is the exclusive right to explore, develop and produce sand and gravel from an area for a duration specified within the concession.

Certain lands within the Inuvialuit Settlement region are subject to overlap agreements with the Gwich'in and consequently fall under Gwich'in administration.

Commissioner's Land

Commissioner's lands are federal lands for which control and administration has been transferred to the Commissioner of the Northwest Territories. These lands are usually in and around communities and also include highways and roads on public land. They comprise less than one percent of the Northwest Territories. The Department of Municipal and Community Affairs (MACA), within the Government of the Northwest Territories (GNWT) manages Commissioner's lands. Under the Commissioner's Land Act and regulations, MACA reviews and processes land use applications, though approval from the local hamlet or tribal council is necessary before land use permits can be issued. Developers may apply for a quarrying lease for the granular deposit, generally if use of the resource will be required over a relatively long time period. Over shorter time periods (one or two years) the development of the deposit requires a quarry permit. Leases and permits authorize the removal of granular materials and specify the fees and royalties to be paid under the Commissioner's Land Regulations.

Under the Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act, the issuing of permits for land use activities is the responsibility of the land and water boards. At the time of writing,

MACA is continuing to issue permits and is negotiating with the land and water boards on this issue.

Phone: (867) 920-6125 Fax: (867) 920-6343

Municipal Land

This includes all lands within a municipal boundary, but excluding: First Nation owned lands; Crown lands; Commissioner's lands; and mines and minerals other than granular materials. All activities on municipal lands are administered and controlled by the Commissioner for the use and benefit of the local municipality, and generally follow the process described for Commissioner's land. Municipalities are consulted before any quarry permits or leases are issued on municipal lands. Through quarry or land administration agreements, administrative control of quarry permits and leases may be given to the municipality. The Commissioner's Land Act and Regulations apply to all land use activities on municipal lands and approval from the local municipality is required for both quarry leases and permits.

APPLICATION & REVIEW PROCESS

Various agencies, depending on the land designation of the proposed project, receive and review applications for granular use. DIAND issues quarry permits for Crown lands; First Nations issue rights for access to resources on their private lands. In the Inuvialuit Settlement Region and southern Mackenzie Valley, DIAND still issues land use permits. In the Gwich'in and Sahtu Settlement Regions of the northern Mackenzie Valley, Land and Water Boards issue these permits.

The process for federal lands administered by DIAND is described in greater detail; while processes for other lands may be similar the reader should refer to the responsible agencies for more detailed information.

Crown Land in the Southern Mackenzie Valley

If site investigation is required to explore the potential of a pit or quarry, a land use permit is required for this activity. If the site is to be developed, both a quarry permit and land use permit is required. The following description of the application process (also depicted in figure 1) is the standard process for obtaining necessary permits for granular deposits located on Crown land.

Applications for land use permits and quarry permits are usually submitted by the proponent at the same time. When an application for a land use permit is received by DIAND, it is first checked for completeness. All fees are paid when the application is submitted.

If the land use permit application is accepted, it is forwarded to the Lands Advisory Committee (LAC) for screening. This committee consists of representatives of various federal and territorial agencies, as well as other interest groups, including Aboriginal organizations. The LAC provides comments to the Land Use Engineer from DIAND to assist in determining if the land use permit should be issued. Conditions pertaining to environmental protection, abandonment, restoration and security are attached to the land use permit.

The Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act has established regional land and water boards in the Mackenzie Valley to handle preliminary screening and issuing land use permits. At the time of writing, part IV of the Act has not yet been proclaimed. When it is, the Mackenzie Valley Land and Water Board, will take over the responsibility for preliminary screening and issuing land use permits for quarry activities in the areas of unsettled land claims. The Mackenzie Valley Environmental Impact Review Board conducts further environmental impact assessment, if it is required. DIAND will remain responsible for issuing quarry permits.

This Directory was compiled prior to proclamation of Part IV of the Mackenzie Valley Resource Management Act, establishing the Mackenzie Valley Land and Water Board. Land use permit applications in the Southern Mackenzie Valley should now be referred to :

 Mackenzie Valley Land & Water Board
P.O. Box 2130, Yellowknife, NT X1A 2P6
Phone: (867) 669-0506 Fax: (867) 873-6610

Once a land use permit has been issued, DIAND Resource Management Officers conduct inspections during the operation of the quarry or pit to monitor compliance with the terms and conditions of the permits. Copies of inspection reports are forwarded to the Permittee. Should an Inspector determine that a Permittee is not complying with their permit, enforcement action can be taken, including cancellation of the permit and litigation.

Commissioner's & Municipal Lands in the Southern Mackenzie Valley

Land within this designation comprises only a small portion of the land base in the Northwest Territories. For Commissioner's or municipal lands the GNWT, Municipal and Community Affairs would receive the application. Fees are paid at the time of application. For developments on municipal land the local hamlet or tribal council is consulted prior to issuance of the permit.

Once a permit has been issued, staff from MACA conducts inspections during the operation of the quarry or pit to monitor compliance with the terms and conditions of the permits.

Gwich'in and Sahtu Settlement Areas

In the Gwich'in and Sahtu settlement areas, the Gwich'in or Sahtu Land and Water Board and the appropriate regulatory authority (e.g. DIAND on Crown land) would receive and accept or reject the application for land use. All fees and royalties would be payable to the applicable Land and Water Board. The land and water boards conduct a preliminary screening of the project to insure that the environmental impact of the project is acceptable and minimized. The Mackenzie Valley Environmental Impact Review Board conducts further environmental impact assessment, if it is required. DIAND remains responsible for issuing quarry permits.

Access agreements with either the Gwich'in Land Administration or the Sahtu Land Corporations are also necessary if the resources are located on lands owned by these First Nations. This permission usually needs to be obtained prior to the regulatory agency issuing a permit.

Inuvialuit Settlement Region

Crown Land

On Crown land, a land use application and quarry permit application is received by DIAND, and checked for completeness. All fees are paid when the applications are submitted.

The proponent also submits a project description to the Environmental Impact Screening Committee (EISC) to determine whether the development may result in a significant negative environmental impact and, if so, whether further review by the Environmental Impact Review Board (EIRB) is required. The Environmental Impact Screening Committee Operating Guidelines and Procedures and the Environmental Impact Review Board Operating Procedures outline the processes followed by these two co-management organizations. A permit may not be issued until the provisions of the screening and review process have been complied with.

Once a permit has been issued for Crown land, DIAND Resource Management Officers conduct inspections during the operation to monitor compliance with the terms and conditions of the permits. Copies of inspection reports are forwarded to the Permittee. Should an inspector determine that a Permittee is not complying with their permit, enforcement action can be taken, including cancellation of the permit and litigation.

Commissioner's and Municipal Land

For Commissioner's or municipal lands the GNWT, Municipal and Community Affairs would receive the application. Fees are paid at the time of application.

The proponent also submits a project description to the Environmental Impact Screening Committee (EISC) to determine whether the development may result in a significant negative environmental impact and, if so, whether further review by the Environmental Impact Review Board (EIRB) is required. The Environmental Impact Screening Committee Operating Guidelines and Procedures and the Environmental Impact Review Board Operating Procedures outline the processes followed by these two co-management organizations. A permit may not be issued until the provisions of the screening and review process have been complied with.

Once a permit has been issued for Commissioner's or municipal lands, staff from MACA conducts inspections during the operation of the quarry or pit to monitor compliance with the terms and conditions of the permits.

Inuvialuit Owned Lands

The Inuvialuit Land Administration (ILA) receives and accepts or rejects applications for developments on Inuvialuit lands. All fees and royalties are payable to the Inuvialuit Land Administration. Inuvialuit lands are administered by the ILA and are subject to the ILA rules and procedures, including a screening and permitting process to deal with proposed developments solely affecting Inuvialuit lands.

REGULATORS

Applications for permit use of granular resources must be given to the appropriate agency, based on the designation of the land concerned.

PERMIT APPLICATION

Aboriginal Land, apply to the appropriate aboriginal agency;

Commissioner's & Municipal Land, apply to the appropriate Dept. of Community and Municipal Affairs, Government of the Northwest Territories;

Crown Land, apply to Dept. of Indian Affairs & Northern Development, North Mackenzie District Office, or the South Mackenzie District Office, Government of Canada.

REVIEW PROCESS

Agencies, including aboriginal and co-management that may be involved in some aspect of the screening and reviewing of applications.

DIAND RESOURCE MANAGEMENT AREAS AND LAND CLAIM SETTLEMENT REGIONS- NWT

KEY DEFINITIONS

A pit is any site where unconsolidated earth materials such as topsoil, sand and/or gravel resources are extracted. Since sand and gravel deposits are often found together, both can usually be extracted from the same pit.

Extraction and processing activities are similar for sand and gravel operations. Pit depths vary but rarely exceed 5 to 7 metres. Pit sizes typically range from 1 to 2 hectares (ha) but occasionally are larger, involving 10 to 20 ha or more. Most sand and gravel pits are located near the site where the materials will eventually be used, because the major cost of supply is in the transportation required.

Quarries are any sites used for the extraction of building products or construction material from bedrock, such as limestone, shale, sandstone, or granite. Quarries may also be used as to manufacture crushed rock or other specific types of aggregate.

Borrow pits are often excavated to provide low quality fill for construction activities such as roadbed building and landscaping. Fill of this type is usually removed from a nearby borrow pit and then compacted on the site as a base for other construction.

Clay and marl pits are usually opened for special situations. As clay can help reduce seepage, it is often used to line dugouts, water reservoirs, sewage lagoons or ditches. Marl or bog lime may be used to reduce the acidity of soils or waters and is often added to mine tailing ponds.
