

Northwest Territories Community Wellness in Action 2000-2001:

Summary Report of Community Wellness Initiatives

Message from the Minister

It is my pleasure as Minister of Health and Social Services to present Community Wellness in Action 2000-2001: A Summary Report of Community Wellness Initiatives.

The Community Wellness Report is an important document of accountability, highlighting the many successful community-based initiatives that were implemented throughout the Northwest Territories through various territorial and federal programs.

These initiatives illustrate the key role communities have in promoting healthy living and encouraging NWT residents to make healthy lifestyle choices for themselves and their families.

I wish to thank all those people who have participated in these wellness initiatives. Your efforts to improve the well-being of your families and community will provide benefits for many years to come.

Introduction

In the 2000-2001 fiscal year, more than $7 million were spent on community wellness initiatives in the Northwest Territories. Funds were accessed through ten different wellness programs, with 59% of the wellness funds from the First Nations and Inuit Health Program of Brighter Futures, Aboriginal Head Start and the Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program.

As in previous years, communities identified healthy child development as a crucial step towards improving community wellness.

Consequently, many early childhood development initiatives were supported through programs such as Aboriginal Head Start, the Community Action Program for Children, and the Healthy Children Initiative.

At the same time, projects and activities implemented under Brighter Futures, which provided 40% of overall wellness funding, reveal the holistic approach communities are taking towards improving wellness. Brighter Futures funding was utilized for a wide range of projects targeting infants, youth, adults, as well as Elders. These included FAS, parenting and healing workshops, toddler programs, sports and other recreational activities for youth, Elders meetings, on-the-land programs, community celebrations, breakfast programs, and participation in youth and other conferences.

Communities placed particular importance on cultural awareness programs. Many of these focused on keeping alive or reviving socially and culturally significant traditions, and on passing traditional knowledge and skills down to the younger generation.

Many organizations and community groups worked hard to develop and implement the wellness initiatives described in this report, and to improve the health status of families and communities in the Northwest Territories.

This report lists wellness funding and wellness initiatives according to region. The information provided has been derived from community reports. Funding is representative of dollars committed to projects in Contribution Agreements, not of actual expenditures. A chart outlining all NWT wellness programs and their funding agencies has also been provided.

Description of Wellness Programs

Brighter Futures¹

Brighter Futures is designed to assist First Nations and Inuit communities in developing community-based approaches to health programs. The purpose is to improve the quality of,

and access to, culturally sensitive wellness services in the community. These services will, in turn help create healthy family and community environments, which support child development. While the program is intended specifically for First Nations and Inuit children from birth to age six, it is recognized that children's needs cannot be separated from those of their families and community. There are a number of components to Brighter Futures: mental health; child development; injury prevention; healthy babies; solvent abuse; and parenting skills. The communities determine their priorities and allocate their resources accordingly.

Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (CPNP)1

CPNP is a universally accessible program that helps communities to develop or enhance comprehensive services for pregnant women who may be at risk for their own health and the development of their babies. Projects promote breastfeeding, both initiation and continuation; aim to improve the diets of pregnant and breastfeeding women; and attempt to help women feed their infants appropriately for their age. The program has a component for First Nations and Inuit women.

Aboriginal Head Start (AHS)1

AHS is an early intervention program for First Nations, Inuit and Métis children and their families. It is primarily a preschool program that prepares young Aboriginal children for school by meeting their spiritual, emotional, intellectual and physical needs.

AIDS Community Action Program (ACAP)²

ACAP is a component of the Canadian Strategy on HIV/AIDS, the federal government's framework to respond to AIDS in Canada. ACAP aims at preventing the spread of HIV; ensuring treatment, care and support for people living with HIV and AIDS, their caregivers, families and friends; minimizing the adverse impact of HIV/AIDS on individuals and communities; and minimizing the impact of social and economic factors that increase individual and collective risk for HIV infection.

Community Action Program for Children (CAPC)1

CAPC funds community-based coalitions to establish and deliver services to meet the developmental needs of children under age six living in conditions at risk. These children: are living in lowincome families; are living in teenage-parent families; are at risk of, or have, developmental delays, social, emotional or behavioral delays; and/or are neglected or abused.

Description of Wellness Programs

Community Animation Program (CAP)²

The goal of CAP is to increase communities' understanding of the connection between environment and health issues, and to strengthen communities' ability to take action on these issues.

Hepatitis C Prevention, Support and Research Program²

The program has four goals: to contribute to the prevention of Hepatitis C infection; to support persons infected with and affected by Hepatitis C; to provide a stronger evidence base for Hepatitis C policy and programming decisions and advance prevention, treatment and cure options by expanding the body of available research and research capacity; and to strengthen the response of the Canadian population to Hepatitis C through increased awareness and capacity.

Population Health Fund (PHF)¹

The goal of the PHF is to increase community capacity for action on or across determinants of health. Through project funding, the Population Health Fund supports initiatives that facilitate coordinated action among voluntary organizations, service providers, governments and the private sector to improve population health.

Healthy Children Initiative (HCI)³

This initiative supports the development of children from prenatal to age six. It focuses on prevention and health promotion and supports a wide range of programs and services from primary intervention to therapeutic services. The HCI is based on a more family-centred model. Earlier child-centred models were treatment driven, focusing on correcting and treating weaknesses and deficits. The family-centred approach places more emphasis on family needs and strengths.

Health Promotion Fund⁴

HPF supports community-based health promotion programs aimed at improving the health of prenatal women, infants, children and youth. It focuses on healthy pregnancies, active living and healthy eating promotion, tobacco harm reduction and cessation, injury prevention and dental health.

Other NWT Projects

Brighter Futures

YWCA of Yellowknife

- Injury Prevention
 - A three-day training workshop was held for NWT shelter workers and family violence program workers. The training, which took place in Yellowknife, focused on the effects children experience due to witnessing violence, and on interventions shelter workers can practice.

Tawon Society

- Community Mental Health
 - · Healthy Snack programs were run for two months in the five safe shelters and three family violence counselling programs in the NWT. The beneficiaries were mostly women and children.

Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program

Evaluation Services

• The Barrington Research Group, Inc. carried out evaluations of CPNP.

Community Animation Program

NWT Ski Division

- Kids on Skis
 - · Clinics, targeting high school students, would be held in ten northern communities, where students would learn about tobacco, environment issues and basic nutrition; and participate in outdoor activities. The goal of the project was to increase youths' awareness of the benefits of not smoking, maintaining a clean environment and active living.

Health Promotion Fund

Active Living Alliance

· Active Living Alliance participated in a project to increase activity in people with disabilities and increase the inclusion of disabled people in the NWT in active living opportunities. A researcher was contracted to raise awareness of this issue in existing active living groups. Research and a phone survey were done and a report was written. The project, based in Yellowknife, covered the whole NWT.

The Status of Women Council of the NWT

• The first annual Family Violence Awareness Week (October 30 to November 5) was established to increase awareness through advertising and media promotion.

NWT Breast Health/Breast Cancer Action Group

• The "Breast Health: Caring for Yourself" booklet (English), which outlines and elaborates on the need for healthy eating, active living, and smoking cessation as a part of a plan for personal breast health, was produced. 10,000 copies of the booklet were printed and distributed to health centres, mammography clinics, family violence shelters, community women centres, friendship centres, and NWT high school health programs across the North.

Population Health Fund

Canadian Public Health Association, NWT Branch

- Youth Tobacco Reduction Strategy Project Phase 2
 - This project built on Phase 1 of the Youth Tobacco Reduction Strategy, and focused on the needs of the youth, supporting youth and adults to gain an understanding of the hazards of tobacco and smoking, and preparing them to deliver and participate in community and territorial events related to smoking cessation. The NWT Department of Health and Social Services also contributed funding to this project.

Other NWT Projects

NWT Literacy Council

• Northern Parenting and Learning Program

A program manual was developed to deliver the "Families First – Northern Parenting and Learning Program".

The Families First program is:

- Designed for parents who wish to support their children's development by becoming more knowledgeable in parenting topics and to improve their literacy skills.
- A resource that can be used in adult education programs, family support centres, health centres, family literacy programs, and early childhood development centres.
- 150 copies of the following were produced:
- Families First: Northern Parenting and Learning program Manual; Resource Kit with print and video resources for the delivery of Families First; CD-Rom with Families First: Northern Parenting and Learning Program Manual (lesson plan templates, certificates, pamphlets, posters), Rhymes and Songs, Learning Activity Cards, Activities for Families.

AIDS Community Action Program/Hepatitis C

Native Women's Association of the NWT

- Community HIV/Hepatitis C Prevention and Awareness Project
 - This project sponsors a joint community/federal/territorial initiative implemented in September 2000.
 - Includes the design of a Funding and Support Team (FAST) responsible for funding numerous HIV/HEP C prevention and awareness projects in NWT communities and regions, and monitoring their success (ongoing project).
